Background

Jenny Crushings was the victim of an attack on her Earth (in dimension 263) by the Kruge, an alien race of shapeshifters that turned the humans there into slaves. She was trained by the Kruge as a soldier, having a natural affinity for combat, and a cortex bomb was placed into her skull as assurance that she would obey. The Kruge were defeated, and almost completely destroyed. She now hires herself out to hunt that race down, one at a time. The money she receives is often gambled away or given to those in need, but she always keeps enough not to be poor. Her comical attitude and interest in all things Japanese hide a very serious side to her personality – the Kruge also killed her young son. She doesn't talk about it.

Jenny's voicebox was removed by the Kruge and replaced with a telepathic communicator. The communicator was removed (it was also a tracking device), and her voice was repaired with an electronic device. This gives her a very female, but unusual and electronic voice.
